

Who will protect our benefits?

Working families need change in our health care system, to replace the same old failed policies which have left 47 million Americans with no insurance and the rest of us paying higher costs for less coverage.

Where do the candidates stand?

Barack Obama
Democrat

Health care for all:

Obama has a plan for HEALTH CARE for all Americans.

- ◆ Currently insured keep their health care plans, at lower cost.
- ◆ Uninsured, self-employed and small business eligible for a new national health plan – similar to the coverage now available to members of Congress.
- ◆ No American turned away from any insurance plan because of pre-existing conditions.

No tax on our health care benefits:

Obama is opposed to any new tax on benefits bargained by working families.

Health care for kids:

Supports expanding the State Childrens Health Insurance Program (S-CHIP).

John McCain
Republican

Health care for some:

McCain has no plan to provide health care for all Americans. Relies on so-called "health savings accounts" – same as President Bush – a phony reform backed by insurance lobbyists which undermines existing employer-based policies. Under the McCain-Bush plan, Americans will face:

- ◆ Reduced benefits
- ◆ Higher costs for working families
- ◆ Millions still left without coverage

Huge new tax on health care:

McCain supports a tax on our health benefits – a huge tax increase for working families.

"Obama health plan outperforms McCain plan in coverage and efficiency," Economic Policy Institute, 5/23/08

Health care for kids:

Opposed expansion of S-CHIP. Said Bush "made the right call!" when he vetoed a bill that would have provided health coverage to millions of American children.
